

Kevin is the founder and director of Woodmont Academy of Fine Arts. An award-winning singer/songwriter/actor, he has been in full-time music ministry since 1987, serving churches in Missouri, Tennessee, and Arkansas before coming to Florence as the Minister of Music at Woodmont Baptist Church in 2002. Over the years, Kevin has directed numerous mission/concert tours to locations all over the United States. He was also very active in community theater in West Memphis, having played such roles as Albert Peterson in "Bye Bye Birdie," and John the Baptist/Judas in "Godspell," (for which he won Best Supporting Actor at the state community theater festival) and served as the musical director for "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" and "My Fair Lady." In 1996 he recorded a CD of original songs entitled, "What It's All About," for which he won 2nd place in songwriting at the 1996 Gospel Music Association's Christian Artists' Seminar in Estes Park, CO. He holds a degree in music from Southwest Baptist University in Bolivar, Missouri. Kevin and his wife, Corinne, have three children: Lydia, Gabe, and Suzanne.
